Ballet Tech Students Selected to Dance with the Bolshoi Ballet

The world renowned Bolshoi Ballet chose six students from Ballet Tech for their summer performance of “The Pharaoh’s Daughter” at the Metropolitan Opera House. More students were chosen from Ballet Tech than from any other dance school in the City. Casting director Carol Blanco remarked, “Your students are a pleasure to work with, mature and professional.” The six talented students selected to dance with the Bolshoi were Nicole Block (8th grade), Adrian Drayton (9th grade), Arisa Lawrence (7th grade), Nia McCullough (7th grade), Sasha Vega (7th grade), and Yulie Vega (7th grade). The performances took place on July 28th, 29th, and 30th, before sold out audiences. Bravo for all your hard work!

Summer Session

For Ballet Tech students, summer did not signify a break from dancing. This year, 153 Ballet Tech students enrolled in our tuition-free summer program, which ran from July 5th-29th. Classes were held Monday- Friday from 9:30am – 3pm, and included ballet technique, pointe, stretch, variations, partnering, and modern, all of which make up the school year curriculum. This allows students to both reinforce what they learn throughout the year, as well as to prepare for fall. In addition to their ballet classes, students enjoyed additional classes in character dance, taught by Ballet Tech faculty member Roni Mahler, and theater dance, taught by guest teachers Jessica Hartman and Dennis Lue. In theater dance, students studied choreography from Broadway productions such as “The Lion King” (choreography by Garth Fagan) and “Dance With Me” (choreography by David Marquez). The students performed the new choreography in a presentation for their parents on the final day of the summer session.

Fall Enrollment

This fall we welcome 57 new 4th and 5th grade students to the tuition-free Ballet Tech School and the New York City Public School for Dance. With a total of 173 students in grades 4-12 registered for the fall, Ballet Tech boasts our largest enrollment yet! Classes will start on September 8th.

Capital Improvements

Ballet Tech is currently undergoing a renovation project that will improve our facilities at 890 Broadway. As a result of this summer's construction, students will enjoy new dressing rooms on both the 7th and 8th floors, including new lockers and improved facilities. As the construction continues, other improvements will include additional office space, increased storage, enhanced studios, and structural improvements.

Our capital campaign continues. The Summer Friends Campaign was successful in raising funds dedicated to capital improvements. Our most recent grant of $100,000 from the Booth Ferris Foundation helped forward the capital improvements as well. If you would like to participate, please contact the Development Department at (212) 777-7710.
